Welcome to O.A.S.I.S.

As parents of children who are diagnosed with AS, we understand how essential is it that families of children diagnosed with Asperger Syndrome and related disorders, educators who teach children with AS, professionals working with individuals diagnosed with AS, and individuals with AS who are seeking support, have access to information. Although recently reminded that there is no oasis or paradise for those with Asperger Syndrome, we sincerely hope that they, along with parents and professionals, will find a bit of shade and support via the information presented and links available at this site.

We are very grateful to the many professionals, parents, and persons with AS and HFA who have made contributions. We would also like to acknowledge the University of Delaware for their generous donation of web space.

Davis Dyslexia Association International

dyslexia
the Gift

The goals of DDAI are to increase worldwide awareness of:

- the perceptual gifts, talents or potentials for genius that accompany and give rise to dyslexia;
- effective methods for resolving the learning disability aspects of dyslexia.

DDAI and its worldwide affiliates accomplish these goals through:

- membership-sponsored newsletters;
- publications and books;
- training and professional certifications in Davis Dyslexia Correction procedures;
- workshops, seminars, conferences and symposiums;
- referrals to qualified Davis Dyslexia Correction providers; and
- providing an online forum for networking and sharing information through this web site.

DDAI is based in the United States. Affiliated Davis Dyslexia Associations have been established in Australia, Germany, Israel, Mexico, the Netherlands, Switzerland, and the UK. Professional training programs and workshops are also provided regularly in Canada.

Davis Dyslexia Association International, San Francisco, California.

On-Line Asperger Syndrome Information and Support

(A.K.A. Asperger Syndrome Resources)

Why O.A.S.I.S.? Until recently it was nearly impossible to find information concerning Asperger Syndrome. As a parent, I understand how essential is it that families of children diagnosed with AS and related disorders, educators who teach children with AS, professionals working with individuals diagnosed with AS, and individuals with AS who are seeking support, have access to information. Although I was recently reminded that there is no oasis or paradise for persons with Asperger's Syndrome, I sincerely hope that they, along with parents and professionals, will find a bit of shade and support via the information presented and links available at this site.

I would like to thank everyone who has made a contribution. In particular, Ted and Julie Whaley Hyperlexia Page for their technical assistance and my husband for his support. --Barb Kirby

Educational Implications Some Ideas For Classroom Management

SAMPLE IEP (ARD) DOCUMENTS

The following documents were prepared by a parent and generously donated for use on this web site. Although they were prepared specifically for use during an IEP process, these documents will be useful to parents and professionals who seek a better understanding of children with this disorder.

1. SAMPLE LETTER TO IEP COMMITTEE FROM PARENT(S)--The following is an exceptionally well researched and documented example of a parent letter to an IEP (or ARD) committee.
2. DOCUMENT 1-- This is a checklist form designed for parents to provide to teachers and other educators to help them understand the strengths and challenges faced by a child with an autism spectrum disorder. It includes sections on environmental challenges, sensory challenges, behaviors, and social skills.
3. DOCUMENT 2 --This is a checklist form designed for parents to provide to teachers and other educators. It incorporates "teaching tips" and modifications/adaptations often necessary to enable a child with an autism spectrum disorder to thrive and succeed in the school setting.
4. DOCUMENT 3--This document is an example of some IEP Goals
 - "Blinded by Their Strengths: The Topsy-Turvy World of Asperger's Syndrome" Diane Twachtman-Cullen, PhD., CCC-SLP
 - "Tips for Teaching High-Functioning People with Autism"--Susan Moreno & Carol O'Neal
 - "Understanding the Student with Asperger Syndrome: Guidelines for Teachers" --Karen Williams
 - "Asperger Syndrome: Educational Implications"--More tips on school issues by Susan Jackel (link to her page)
 - "Teaching Tips For Children and Adults with Autism"--Temple Grandin, PhD (link to Stephen Edelson's Page)
 - "Making the Transition from the World of School Into the World of Work"--Temple Grandin, PhD (link to Stephen Edelson's page.)
 - IEP--Individual Education Program State of Ohio guide to the IEP Process.

Computers and Software

The information concerns commercial sites and/or products. These have been highly recommended to me. While I am happy to post the information about these companies, I offer NO GUARANTEES and ASSUME NO RESPONSIBILITY for their products.

- Newworld Solutions -This company offers new computers at discounted rates to persons with disabilities. They will sell to individuals as well as school districts. They were recommended by Independent Series Center at IBM.
- Neurocognitive Rehabilitation Computer Games, developed by Dr. Odie Bracey. Originally developed for people with traumatic head injury, I have been told they are useful for sharpening any and all cognitive functions. For more information, contact the Neurosciences Center at 317-257-9672 for a catalog.

Legal Information

- EDLAW, Inc., a full service provider of information on education law located in Potomac, Maryland, a suburb of Washington D.C. -While I can make no recommendations about this particular law firm, their web site does provide the IDEA (Individuals with Disabilities Education Act) Documentation.

Davis Dyslexia Association International

The goals of DDAI are to increase worldwide awareness of:

- the perceptual gifts, talents or potentials for genius that accompany and give rise to dyslexia;
- effective methods for resolving the learning disability aspects of dyslexia.

DDAI and its worldwide affiliates accomplish these goals through:

- membership-sponsored newsletters;
- publications and books;
- training and professional certifications in Davis Dyslexia Correction procedures;
- workshops, seminars, conferences and symposiums;
- referrals to qualified Davis Dyslexia Correction providers; and
- providing an online forum for networking and sharing information through this web site.

DDAI is based in the United States. Affiliated organizations have been established in France, Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Mexico, and the United Kingdom.

-Davis Dyslexia Association International, San Francisco, California.

-DDA-Mexico, Monterrey.

-DDA-France, Paris.

-DDA-Deutschland, Hamburg.

-DDA-Nederland, Maria Hoop (near Roermond).
